3. Problems in Party Construction in Universities

3.1 Uneven Development of Party Members

The grassroots party organizations in colleges and universities have imperfect systems for student party building and lack detailed quantitative assessment and evaluation rules. When inspecting development targets, they only look at results or give priority to student cadres. Political literacy, moral conduct, and exemplary leadership are difficult. Quantitative, but very important “soft indicators” were ignored or only played a supporting role in the investigation [4]. As a result, some students with unreasonable motives for joining the party, inadequate understanding of the party, and low political literacy joined the party.

3.2 Insufficient Education of Party Members

On the one hand, the education of reserve party members is usually not as standardized and rigorous as that of investigating development objects, and the newly-developed student party members are inadvertently planting the wrong concept of “complete the task after joining the party” [4]. On the other hand, the untimely study and education of student party members can easily lead to the deep exposure of deep-seated problems in student party members' thoughts, such as unqualified political awareness, lack of ideals and beliefs, and loose behavior, etc., which seriously affect the party member's image. Third, most of the education methods are simple “indoctrination”, lack of pertinence, timeliness, and lack of practical links, which have led to the party members of the students losing their enthusiasm and interest in learning after learning.

3.3 The Party Building System is Not Perfect

If the working system is imperfect, it cannot provide system guarantee and basis for the development of party building work, and cannot provide guidance for the party building work; imperfect management system will lead to colleges and universities the party building work is in a chaotic state, lacking orderliness, and the timeliness of the party building work is relatively low [5]. There may be unfair phenomena in the selection of party members and activists, causing adverse effects.

3.4 Ignore the Continuing Education of Student Party Members

In terms of developing active party members and preparing party members, most colleges and universities can attach importance to the education of students before joining the party in strict accordance with the requirements of the party, while ignoring the education and management of students who have become regular party members. In the new era, colleges and universities usually require students to do internships during their junior or senior year in order to improve their social practice ability. Many student party members may be located far away from the school, and it is not convenient to return to school to participate in party member education. In particular, most of the senior students are busy preparing for the postgraduate entrance examination and are reluctant to waste their study time on training. The school suspended student education for a period of time for student consideration [5]. After becoming a formal party member, only a small number of student party members can take the initiative to learn the party's political theory. In the era of the information explosion, student party members are easily exposed to some bad information. In the party construction work of colleges and universities, the education of college students before joining the party is emphasized, and the phenomenon of continuing education of student party members is neglected, which will cause obvious changes before and after students become party members, which may bring unnecessary trouble to the party construction work.

Only an applicant with a correct motivation to join the party can become an active member or a party member according to the provisions of the party constitution. The motivation to join the party is a serious political issue. The applicant's motivation to join the party is related to the quality of the party members and the construction of the party organization. The party building work in colleges and universities should improve the mechanism and organizational procedures for students to join the party, and avoid students with improper motivation to join the party [7]. At present, most students in colleges and universities apply for membership in the party for various reasons. The school must strictly control students while encouraging them to join the party organization, carefully analyze the true purpose of each applicant to join the party from different angles and levels, and accurately grasp its motivation to join the party. Colleges and universities must improve the mechanism for joining the party, and attract high-quality students to join the party organization in accordance with the relevant regulations and organizational procedures of the party. Students with improper motivations to join the party must not be allowed to join the party, so as to better play the role of party building in colleges and universities.

4.2 Strengthen the Construction of Students' Party Building Practice

In the context of the new era, college party building work must enrich educational content, improve the social practice ability of student party members, and strengthen the construction of student party building practice links. Marxism is the political soul of the party. Marxist historical materialism emphasizes the importance of practice in the dialectical relationship between cognition and practice [7]. Therefore, college party building must attach importance to the practical education of student party members. The party building work of colleges and universities should not only carry out theoretical education such as organization construction theory, ideological and political education theory, and style construction theory, but also carry out rich social practice education activities, for example, encourage student party members to dedicate their love to charity institutions such as nursing homes, welfare institutions, etc. [6] Encourage students to actively participate in volunteer service activities and strengthen contact with the grassroots; organize student party members to visit the old revolutionary base area and feel the red spirit; organize student party members to sweep the graves of martyrs during the Qingming Festival.

Students have little interest in traditional party branch meetings, lectures, reports, gatherings and other party and party activities. Therefore, the party building work in colleges and universities must innovate the party building education method according to the development needs of the times and increase the influence of party building work in colleges and universities. In the "Internet +" era, college party building work can make use of rich network resources, and add interesting small videos and other elements of interest to students in education content, so that the teaching content is no longer boring and boring, attracting students' attention, and let party building education content more vivid and vivid [7]. The school can build its own online publicity platform, use the WeChat public account to push the party's new guidelines and policies, and use the online platform to strengthen the connection between the party branch and student party members.

4.4 Improve the Party Building System and Strengthen the Continuing Education of Party Members

To improve the quality of party building in colleges and universities, it is necessary for universities to establish a perfect party building mechanism, provide scientific guidance and basis for party building work, and at the same time improve the management mechanism to ensure that party building work can be carried out in an orderly manner. Colleges and universities should not only pay attention to the education of party members and party members, but also the continuing education of party members to ensure the advanced nature and purity of student party members [7].
