The second is the lack of functionality at the industrial level, resulting in the inability to provide centralized services, based on which it is difficult to form a rich variety of sports and tourism service products, thereby reducing sports resources. Of course, some small towns are in the rural areas and lack a certain concept of social services in the process of development due to the poor infrastructure. Finally, the enterprise-level business model to product content is not innovative enough, resulting in the sports characteristics of the town in the process of the scene can not present a large integration of content, enterprises fighting alone, lack of special services, tourism resources can not be used.
